this is how it all came about six or seven of us were sitting one day after tea some were gazing across the street into the windows of a milliner s shop where the light still shone brightly upon scarlet feathers and golden slippers others were idly occupied in building little towers of sugar upon the edge of the tea tray after a time so far as i can remember we drew round the fire and began as usual to praise men how strong how noble how brilliant how courageous how beautiful they were how we envied those who by hook or by crook managed to get attached to one for life when poll who had said nothing burst into tears poll i must tell you has always been queer for one thing her father was a strange man he left her a fortune in his will but on condition that she read all the books in the london pg 10 library we comforted her as best we could but we knew in our hearts how vain it was for though we like her poll is no beauty leaves her shoe laces untied and must have been thinking while we praised men that not one of them would ever wish to marry her at last she dried her tears for some time we could make nothing of what she said strange enough it was in all conscience she told us that as we knew she spent most of her time in the london library reading she had begun she said with english literature on the top floor and was steadily working her way down to the times on the bottom and now half or perhaps only a quarter way through a terrible thing had happened she could read no more books were not what we thought them books she cried rising to her feet and speaking with an intensity of desolation which i shall never forget are for the most part unutterably bad whatever hour you woke there was a door shutting from room to room they went hand in hand lifting here opening there making sure a ghostly couple here we left it she said and he added oh but here too it s upstairs she murmured and in the garden he whispered quietly they said or we shall wake them but it wasn t that you woke us oh no they re looking for it they re drawing the curtain one might say and so read on a page or two now they ve found it one would be certain stopping the pencil on the margin and then tired of reading one might rise and see for oneself the house all empty the doors standing open only the wood pigeons bubbling with content and the hum of the threshing machine sounding from the farm what did i come in here for what did i want to find my hands were empty perhaps it s upstairs then the apples were in the loft and so down again the garden still as ever only the book had slipped into the grass but they had found it in the drawing room not that one could ever see them the window panes reflected apples reflected roses all the leaves were green in the glass if they moved in the drawing room the apple only turned its yellow side yet the moment after if the door was opened spread about the floor hung upon the walls pendant from the ceiling what my hands were empty
